

Land in Ridgefield, Live in Ridgefield.

We invite you to discover the Ridgefield area, on the northern edge of Portland-Vancouver USA in Washington's Clark County.

When we say Land Here, we mean it in every sense.

- Ridgefield is at the heart of the Discovery Corridor, a nine-mile stretch along Interstate 5 with large tracts of developable land and five interchanges between the Lewis River and the I-5/205 split.
- Millers Landing is an exciting new 40-acre waterfront property on a historic site, primed for mixed use from light industrial to hospitality. It includes 820,000 square feet of multi-story space with 2,800 parking spaces.
- Ridgefield Industrial Park is a successful 75-acre development with city services that already is home to Pacific Detroit Diesel, US Foods, Corwin Beverage, Sequent Asset Management and Agave Jeans.
- Two deep-water shipping ports, an international airport, and three colleges and universities are just 30 minutes away.
- The timber and agricultural industries discovered this business-friendly community. So did the founders of U-Haul and Red Lion Hotels and, just recently, the founder of Agave Jeans.

Ridgefield is a perfect home for the life-style entrepreneur.

You'll quickly forget that thing called a commute.

The area's connection to nature begins by bordering the Lewis River to the north and Columbia River to the west. Meet nature up close in the picturesque 5,150-acre Ridgefield National Wildlife Refuge. Elevate your sights by scaling one of three mountains visible from the area. Be at the coast in 90 minutes.

Enjoy rolling hills, towering evergreens, tranquil neighborhoods, and a nostalgic downtown. Connect with community through Heritage Days, Birdfest, Clark County Fair and a strong school system.

Improve your game at Tri-Mountain, a Golf Digest 4-star course. Take in great concerts at the nearby 18,000 seat Amphitheatre a few minutes away.
